HOW DO YOU DEFINE A SUCCESSFUL PROJECT?

A successful project should provoke conversation and inspire a mood. Homes are often self-portraits, so I aim to capture the character and personality of the client in the design.

HOW DO YOU THINK YOUR CLIENTS WOULD CHARACTERIZE YOU?

I pour my heart and soul into every project because I love what I do and am committed to creating good design.

WHAT ARE YOU WORKING ON NEXT?

I have begun the process of designing a line of furniture. I look forward to seeing years of sketches and ideas come to life!

MALGOSIA MIGDAL INTERIOR DESIGN

The world of design and architecture intrigued and excited Malgosia Migdal from a young age, inspiring her to move from Poland to Los Angeles to follow her dream of a career in interior design. After extensive education throughout Europe, as well as the University of California Los Angeles, Migdal launched her own boutique design firm in the heart of Beverly Hills nearly 20 years ago and has since transformed an impressive variety of private residences, commercial spaces and public buildings into exclusive and stunning environments. “Interior design is a lifestyle for me: I live it, breathe it and dream it. Design continues to always inspire me, constantly gathering new ideas and visions,” says Migdal. As founder of MMID (Malgosia Migdal Interior Design), Migdal utilizes a mixture of traditional and modern design elements to achieve interior spaces that are stylish and comfortable while capturing her clients’ individualities. “I love layering, mixing clean modern lines with the rustic and distressed. The melding of the old and new, and the antique and contemporary, is what gives a home character and life.” Specializing in creating beautiful and dramatic spaces that don’t sacrifice comfort, Migdal’s designs balance the contemporary with the traditional. By creating unique environments that are both visually stunning and functional, Migdal and her design team take pride in fulfilling their clients’ dreams through innovative ideas and creative execution.

A successful project should provoke conversation and inspire a mood. Homes are often self-portraits, so I aim to capture the character and personality of the client in the design.

“My aim is always to capture the essence of a space and to create homes that are soulful and full of character and personality.”

Drawing inspiration from designs of the 1960s and '70s, this scheme is both classic and bold, with blackened-steel-framed walnut doors and a bronze pedestal desk designed by MMID.

An understated color palette was essential to creating a spa-like home retreat in this neutral, earthy and calming master bathroom.

This formal living room is furnished with subtle animal print leathers and fabrics set against a backdrop of dramatic high-gloss black walls.

A design for family life and city living, the décor in this family room is inspired by monochromatic tones while adding depth and interest through a variety of textures.
